Here's a simplified version of the Apple macOS Software License Agreement, made concise and easy to understand for students without a legal background:

Apple macOS Software License Agreement - Simplified

1. General Terms

- This software is licensed, not sold. You can use it according to this agreement.
- Apple owns the software. You're just allowed to use it within the limits of this license.
- Updates provided by Apple also follow these terms.

2. Allowed Uses

- You can install and use one copy of the software on an Apple computer.
- If you got the software from the Mac App Store, you can:
 - Install it on all your Apple devices using the same Apple ID for personal use.
 - Use it on shared devices for educational or business purposes.

3. Restrictions

- You can't:
 - Use this software on non-Apple computers.
 - Copy, modify, or reverse-engineer the software.
 - Share or sell the software to others.
- You can make one backup copy, but it's only for emergencies.

4. Third-Party Content

- The software may display or let you access content from other sources (like maps or news). Apple isn't responsible for these materials or their accuracy.

5. Data Use

- Apple may collect and use certain information (like analytics or location data) when you use specific features.
- You can read Apple's Privacy Policy for more details.

6. Termination

- If you break any rules in this agreement, Apple can terminate your right to use the software.

7. No Guarantees

- The software is provided "as is." Apple doesn't promise that it will work perfectly or meet all your needs.

8. Liability

- Apple is not responsible for any damages or losses caused by using the software.

9. Other Rules

- Don't use the software in ways prohibited by law (e.g., for illegal copying or hacking).
- Exporting the software to restricted countries or users is not allowed.

This simplified version removes legal jargon while covering the key points. Let me know if you'd like further tweaks!
