Here's a simplified version of the Terms and Conditions document tailored for students:

RStudio End User License Agreement (Simplified Version)

This document explains the rules for using RStudio software. By using the software, you agree to follow these terms.

Key Points:

1. Who Can Use This Software?

- You must have permission from your organization (if you're using it on their behalf) or use it personally as allowed.
- Students and teachers can use the software for educational purposes only with the proper license.

2. Trial Version

- You can try the software for free for a limited time. Use it only to decide if you want to buy it. Don't share it or use it beyond the trial period.

3. Your License (Permission)

- You're allowed to install and use the software as per your license type (e.g., for one person or one server).
- Don't share, modify, or use it on more devices than allowed.

4. Support and Updates

- During your subscription, RStudio provides help and software updates. Older versions may not get updates.

5. Payment

- Pay for the license on time. Taxes may apply. Refunds are not provided.

6. Privacy and Confidentiality

- RStudio keeps your data private, and you must do the same for their software and documents.

7. Your Responsibility

- Don't use the software illegally or for unsafe purposes (like in life-critical systems).
- Ensure compliance with all rules, including export restrictions.

8. If Something Goes Wrong

- RStudio promises the software will work as described, but if there are problems, they'll try to fix it. They're not responsible for indirect damages like lost data.

9. Ending the Agreement

- Either party can end this agreement for specific reasons, like not paying fees or misuse of the software. If the agreement ends, stop using and delete the software.

10. Changes to the Terms

- RStudio may update these terms. By continuing to use the software, you accept the changes.
